Records of the Headquarters Southeast Asia Command (SEAC) 1943-1945

Headquarters Southeast Asia Command (SEAC) was established by Combined Chiefs of Staff (CCS) directive, CCS 308/3, August 21, 1943, implementing decision reached at Quadrant Conference, Quebec, Canada (August 14-24, 1943). SEAC became operational, November 16, 1943, with headquarters in New Delhi, India, and was responsible for planning and executing operations against Japanese forces in the southeastern Asia area that included Burma, Thailand, Malaya, Ceylon (Sri Lanka), and Sumatra. SEAC moved to Kandy, Ceylon, April 15, 1944. Pursuant to decisions made at Terminal Conference, Potsdam, Germany (July 16-26, 1945), and conveyed in CCS directive to Supreme Commander Southeast Asia, CCS 892/2, July 20, 1945, as amended July 24, 1945, the area under SEAC expanded, effective September 2, 1945 (date of the formal Japanese surrender), to include Borneo, Java, Celebes, the western half of New Guinea, and that portion of Indo-China lying south of the 16th Parallel. U.S. participation in SEAC officially terminated November 1, 1945, leaving SEAC a wholly British command. SEAC abolished December 1, 1946, with command functions divided among commanders-in-chief of the three services, and a joint service headquarters established under chairmanship of a civilian.

Records of the Secretary of State's Staff Committee 1944-1947

During World War II more than a hundred committees within the State Department dealt with numerous problems generated by the war and developed plans and programs for the postwar period. In late 1944 the State Department established the Secretary's Staff Committee, giving it the authority to coordinate and direct these activities. By the terms of its establishing directive (Departmental Order 1301 of December 20, 1944), the Staff Committee replaced both the Policy Committee and the Committee on Postwar Programs, and, with the broadest jurisdiction of any departmental group, it became the final review and advisory body for foreign policy and international relations. Participation by others was by special invitation. The committee was abolished by Departmental Announcement 575 of June 18, 1947.

The records of the committee relate both to the formulation and to the conduct of U.S. foreign policy. The committee was concerned with virtually every major aspect of the nation's involvement with international political, economic, and social programs. Of particular interest are the records related to the multinational conferences at Yalta, Dumbarton Oaks, San Francisco, Potsdam, and Bretton Woods; armistice negotiations and postwar relations with former Eastern European belligerents; the surrender of Germany and Japan and their subsequent demilitarization, occupation, and economic programs; the European Economic Commission; and international monetary and economic arrangements.

Regular committee members received an agenda and, in many instances, one or more subject matter documents in advance of each scheduled meeting. The documents were topical staff studies that informed each member of various views within the State Department on the subject under consideration. Each document analyzed a topic by addressing it as a "Problem," by making applicable "Recommendations," and then presenting a relevant "Discussion." The minutes of meetings paraphrase discussions of agenda items and of additional unscheduled matters considered urgent business by the committee. After the conclusion of a meeting, a Daily (designated "SC/R"), Weekly ("SC/W"), or Monthly ("SC/M") Summary of Action and Directives was issued. These reports summarized the committee's decisions, directives, and recommendations and provided a permanent reference for the State Department in formulating policy.

Several points should be emphasized about the use of the committee's records. Most of the series are arranged chronologically and in numerical sequence. The committee frequently held two meetings on the same day, and the minutes of these sessions were consecutively numbered. The subject-matter documents were often revised, in which case the original identification number was retained and an alphabetical or numerical suffix was assigned. (For example, document No. SC-00 might be reissued as SC-00a or SC-00/1). Also, it should be noted that there is no index to the minutes of the committee meetings.

There were seventy sessions with related agendas; such sessions were called on short notice to consider urgent business. Researchers should exercise caution in using the agenda as a topical guide to the business of the committee. Rather, they should consult entries in the Index to Documents and Reports on a particular subject, obtain the date on which the topic was considered by the Committee from the heading on the first page of the specified report, and then refer to the minutes of the meeting for that specific day.

The records of the committee have been microfilmed as NARA Microfilm Publication M1054 (0353-A1-370-374, 376-381)

Records of the State-War-Navy Coordinating Committee

The State-War-Navy Coordinating Committee (SWNCC) was established in December 1944 to coordinate the common interests of the State, War, and Navy Departments and to establish policies for their departments regarding politico-military issues. The SWNCC maintained liaison with the Joint Chiefs of Staff in order to obtain military approval for its decisions. The SWNCC drafted directives for the control of Japan and coordinated the views of its member agencies on policy for presentation by the United States at international conferences. From the fall of 1947 until its termination in June 1949, the SWNCC was renamed the State-Army-Navy-Air Force Coordinating Committee (SANACC).

Subcommittee Records

Subcommittee for the Far East

In order to avoid belated and piecemeal handling of the Far East situation SWNCC established a subcommittee to deal with problems concerning the Far East. The subcommittee proposed a U.S. perspective on surrender terms for Japan, the disposition of territories occupied by the enemy, the military administration of civil affairs in the Far East, and other collateral matters. The subcommittee coordinated its studies of these problems with interested departments especially with the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Eugene H. Dooman of the Department of State was chairman, and Rear Adm. Harold C. Train, Maj. Gen. George V. Strong, and Maj. Gen. John H. Hilldring were committee members. The subcommittee actively prepared decisions on current problems for SWNCC and drafted policy statements for introduction to the Far Eastern Commission and for the guidance of occupation commanders.

Records of the Division of World Trade Intelligence and its Successor, Division of Economic Security Controls

On July 17, 1941, President Franklin D. Roosevelt issued a Presidential Proclamation that instructed the Secretary of State, acting in conjunction with the Secretary of the Treasury, the Attorney General, the Secretary of Commerce, the Administrator of Export Controls, and the Coordinator of Commercial and Cultural Relations Between the American Republics, to prepare an appropriate list of persons and firms working with or for Axis nations and persons to whom exports from the United States were deemed detrimental to the interests of national defense. As a result of this order the Secretary of State established on July 21, 1941, the Division of World Trade Intelligence to handle State Department responsibilities pertaining to the "Proclaimed List of Certain Blocked Nationals." The Division was at first under the direct supervision of Assistant Secretary Dean Acheson but later became part of the Board of Economic Operations and successor economic offices. On March 1, 1945, it was renamed the Division of Economic Security Controls and as such became a part of the Office of Economic Security Policy on October 20 of that year.

The Division of World Trade Intelligence prepared the original "Proclaimed List of Certain Blocked Nationals" and maintained its various supplements and revisions from 1941 to 1946. The lists named persons and companies, residing in areas outside of enemy control, who directly or indirectly rendered substantial aid to the enemy war machine. Those listed were denied the privilege of trading with the United States.

After the victories in Europe and the Pacific, the list was reduced to a "hard core" of the worst offenders. With the concurrence of the Departments of the Treasury, Justice, and Commerce, the Department of State announced the withdrawal of the "Proclaimed List," also known as the "American Black List," effective July 8, 1946.

As additions to and deletions from the list required continual changes in its composition, supplements to the original list, revisions of it, and supplements to these revisions proved necessary. Arranged chronologically. Boxes 1-2 location: 250/67/30/07.

British Statutory List 1940-1946 (0353-A1-37)

File copies of the various amended versions of the British Statutory List, issued pursuant to the Trading with the Enemy Order through the Board of Trade, Amendment No. 9 for 1940 (August 3) through Amendment No. 16 for 1946 (June 11), plus the Revocation of the List,

July 6, 1946. The British Statutory List was very similar to the American "Proclaimed List," in that it published the names of persons and firms in areas outside of enemy control who had in some way rendered significant aid to the enemy war machine, and that those listed were proscribed from trading with the British Empire. Arranged chronologically. Boxes 2-3 location: 250/67/30/07.

British War Trade Lists 1941-1944 (0353-A1-38)
File copies of the War Trade Lists Nos. 6-18, June 1, 1941-November 1, 1944, and of the Advice Notes that supplemented the Lists, 1941-1945. The British War Trade Lists, issued by the Ministry of Economic Warfare, differed from the British Statutory List in that they contained all the information included in the latter, as well as the names on the British Black List and Ships War Trade Lists. The War Trade Lists were thus more comprehensive than the Statutory List, and were considered confidential, whereas the Statutory List was published. With the cessation of the British Black List on May 26, 1945, the War Trade List no longer differed significantly from the Statutory List, and a notice that no further Advice Notes would be forthcoming was issued on June 23, 1945. Arranged chronologically. Boxes 4-6 location: 250/67/30/07.

British MEW "G" List 1941-1943 (0353-A1-39)

The main purpose of the British MEW "G" List was to indicate to censorship, import, export, contraband, and other controls transactions whether a name on the list required special watching. A Ships "G" List formed an annex to this list and its supplements. The MEW, which issued both the MEW "G" List and the Ships "G" List, announced on May 31, 1943 that it was discontinuing the lists because developments in economic warfare had rendered them less useful. Arranged chronologically. Boxes 6-7 location: 250/67/30/07.

Records of the Military Government Division

The Military Government Division was established in August 1942 and had staff responsibility for the selection and training of qualified civilians for direct commissions and of military personnel for duty as civil affairs officers. It operated the School for Military Government and civil affairs training programs at civilian institutions of higher learning. The actual administration of civil affairs was carried out by the Civil Affairs Division of the War Department General Staff, but the Military Government Division maintained close liaison with that Division and with the Military Training Division of Headquarters Army Service Forces, the Navy Department, and the American Council of Learned Societies.

Decimal Correspondence File, 1942-1946 (0389-A1-441A)

Publications and Background Papers Relating to Civil Affairs and Military Government in Occupied Areas 1942-1946 (0389-A1-443)
Guides, histories, handbooks, reports, studies, and other records, some of which were published, relating to the control of civil affairs and implementation of military government in Germany and other occupied and liberated areas. Included are bibliographies on various subjects, intelligence summaries of occupied areas, civil affairs handbooks on foreign countries, histories of the occupied countries, and a five-volume history of the military government training experience in World War II. The records are arranged in two subseries, the first of which is arranged numerically and the second alphabetically by subject. Within the numerical arrangement there is background information on military government planning for Japan and other countries. The subject subseries contains considerable information relating to civil affairs planning for specific countries (filed alphabetically by name under the general subject heading "Countries"). The information for each country varies from general economic and administrative data to very specific subjects. There are extensive collections of background materials for Germany, Italy, and Japan, pertaining to all manner of civil affairs interests (e.g., labor, finance, transportation, public health, regional administration, political organization).

Records of the Military Police Division

Records of the Doctrine and Enforcement Branch

Reports and Correspondence Relating to Activities of the Military Police Overseas 1942-1947 (0389-A1-449)

The contents of this series suggests that a number of records of theater provost marshals and individual MP units stationed overseas were withdrawn from their original files and consolidated here (particularly for Pacific Theater commands), in a similar manner to that described for many records of technical service units. This series includes after-action observations and historical reports for overseas combat units in general. Information on specific theaters is often scattered under several subject headings. For example, data on military police unit activities in the Asiatic and Pacific Theaters can be found in the following entries: "Connett, Col. Leslie" (inspection tour, May-December 1944); "Pacific;" and "Theater - C.B.I." (The last includes an extensive photo album and a history of the Theater Provost Marshal). Subject entries "Pacific" and "Theater - ETO" provide the most extensive documentation on combat-related operations of MP units during the war. Entry "Pacific" includes a multi-volume history of Provost Marshal activities in Pacific Theaters, 1941-1947; numerous translations of captured Japanese documents relating to the organization, procedures, and operations of the Japanese military police; and general after-action reports and summary observations of individual Army commands (for both Pacific Ocean Areas and Southwest Pacific Area) and of Army Ground Forces observers. Additional translations of captured Japanese documents relating to Japanese military police operations and procedures are located in subject entry "Countries - Japan." Entry "History" consists of a general history of MP activities in all theaters during World War II. Arranged alphabetically by subject. Boxes 1159-1177 location: 290/34/6/04.

Records of the Prisoner of War Division

Most of the OPMG's work during World War II involved the Prisoner of War Division, an organization eventually reorganized into three staff divisions in December 1944. The division's records constitute the primary source of documentation on Axis prisoners of war in the United States and American prisoners of war and civilian internees in general. These records emphasize the period 1943-1946; earlier data is located in the OMPG Executive Division's general correspondence, 1941-1962.

Records of the POW Operations Division pertain almost entirely to prisoners of war held in the United States; only peripheral information is provided regarding prisoners of war in overseas theaters. These records extensively document the collective experience of the prisoners of war in the United States, but the movements and actions of individual prisoners of war are very difficult to trace.

Within the 1942-1946 subseries, there is an alphabetically arranged subject index at the beginning of the subseries. Classification 350.05 includes several interrogations of German and Japanese personnel on topics of intelligence value. Classification 334 consists of copies of reports and minutes of meetings of the British Imperial Prisoner of War Committee, April 1943-April 1945. The

Formerly Security Classified Microfilm Copy of International Red Cross Lists Relating to Americans Captured or Interned By Germany and Japan, 1943-1945 (0389-A1-455)
Reproduces lists of American prisoners of war supplied by the Axis powers. Included are lists for specific Prisoner of War camps and separate lists for interned civilians and merchant seamen. The lists typically include the Prisoner's name, identification number service serial number, rank, name and address of next of kin, date of capture, and remarks on wounds, transfers, and deaths. Arranged according to coded designations of types of records (e.g., "J," "KU," "RUSJA") and thereunder numerically. The "J," "KU," and "KUA" coded records all represent translations of original German reports of downed individual aircraft and captured Airmen, including some preliminary interrogations of the latter. The "RUS" and "RUSC" coded records constitute photostat copies of German-compiled lists of captured and deceased U.S. military personnel, including some similar lists for British flying personnel. The "RUSI" and "RUSO" coded records represent photostatic copies of lists of American prisoners of war in Italian and Rumanian custody, respectively. The "RUSJA" coded records constitute photostatic copies of International Red Cross telegrams of names of American prisoners of war, although it is unclear whether these refer only to Europe or to the Far East as well. Boxes 1657-1699 location: 290/34/14/02.

Policy and Procedural Records Relating to the Supervision of Prisoners of War and Their Camps 1942-1945 (0389-A1-458)
A miscellaneous collection that includes policy correspondence and data regarding the payments of prisoners of war and the wartime exchange and repatriation of prisoners of war among belligerent powers. Most significant are weekly statistical reports of the numbers of prisoners of war held, further divided between nationality and between officers and enlisted men, at each main and branch camp in the United States, 1943-1945 (file "P/W Population Lists"); a summary report of medical treatment of prisoners of war in the United States, September 1945 ("Treatment of POWs"); and a report by SEAC (Southeast Asia Command) on conditions and treatment of Allied prisoners of war and civilian internees recently liberated from Japanese captivity in Southeast Asia, November 1945 ("SEAC POW"). Records Relating to the Collection and Dissemination of Information Concerning American Civilians and Military Personnel Captured or Interned in Enemy Countries 1942-1945 (0389-A1-459)

These records extensively document various aspects of POW experiences during the war. Subjects include a printout of American civilian internees (alphabetically arranged) detained by the Japanese, December 1941-August 1945, giving the dates of initial and final report, and coded information on each civilian's location and status at the time of the internment ("Americans Detained by the Japanese"); lists and descriptions, including photographs, of Japanese POW camps throughout the Far East ("Japanese POW Information Bureau, " "Japan-POW Camps," "Pictures-Honshu"); copies of Japanese POW regulations (in Japanese and English), December 1941 (file "Laws and Regulations on POWs"); and accounts of the deaths of American prisoners of war at sea in the Far Eat, 1944 ("War Claims").[15] The file "Microfilms" includes scattered microfilm copies (mostly in capsules) of lists of American prisoners of war. Some files in the series directly relate to British prisoners of war during the war. Several files under the general heading of "Imperial POW Committee" document the activities of that organization on behalf of British prisoners of war, 1944-1945, particularly those in the Far East. The file "Release of POWS-Procedure" contains an envelope of 10-12 phonograph disks with the recorded comments of repatriated American prisoners of war from the Far East describing conditions in Japanese POW camps (recorded 1946). Information is often scattered among numerous subject files. For example, records of American prisoners of war and civilian internees held in the Philippine Islands are located in (but not limited to) the following subject files: Bilibid Hospital/Prison Camp; Cabanatuan Prison Camps; Camps-Japan-Fukuoka Group; Camp Reports-Philippine Islands; Casualty Reports-Philippine Islands Area; Davao Penal Colony; Death Lists-Bagui Internment Camp; Diaries for various individuals (often detailing atrocities and hardships in captivity); Intelligence Reports (including reports on conditions in Los Banos, Bilibid, and Cabanatuan camps); Internees-Philippine Islands Internment Camp; Interrogation Reports (of repatriated American prisoners of war, some of them pertaining to camps in the Philippines); List-Recovered Civilians, Los Banos, P.I.; Philippine Campaign; and Relief of Americans, Lists of Internees in the Philippines. IBM Cards Subject Index. n.d. (0389-A1-460B)
Each punch card pertains to one POW or internee and typically provides such data as name, rank, serial number, service arm or branch, dates of initial and latest report regarding captivity, area of capture, status, detaining power, camp, and repatriation status. In practice, however, many data elements—particularly "latest report" and "camp location"—are not provided. The largest category of punch cards concerns "American POWs returned to military control by the Germans" Other categories include: American civilian POWs (released and dead) interned by the Japanese; American prisoners of war returned to military control by the Japanese; sinkings of Japanese transports, September-December 1944; deceased American prisoners (Japanese); neutral internees; deceased America prisoners of war (Germany); and civilians. Arranged in 11 categories of American prisoners of war and civilian internees, each of which is thereunder arranged alphabetically by individual surname. Exceptions are three categories: for sinkings of Japanese transports carrying prisoners of war; each of these is arranged by name of transport and thereunder alphabetically by prisoner of war surname. Boxes 1-105 location: 290/34/22/03.

Correspondence, Camp Reports, Rosters, and Personnel Records Relating to Enemy Aliens and Prisoners of War Interned in the United States 1943-1946 (0389-A1-461)
Reports of inspections of individual prisoner of war camp facilities and conditions by Army and Red Cross officials are located in file "Inspection Reports," thereunder arranged alphabetically by camp or facility name; often these are accompanied by camp design diagrams. A "Historic File" includes a draft narrative history of the prisoner of war program in the United States, a month-by-month listing of the total number of prisoners of war in the United States, November 1942-June 1945, and copies of relevant publications. Monthly reports of the numbers of prisoners of war held in specific camps and facilities, October 1945-May 1946, are located in file "Strength Reports." File "Detention Rosters" most closely approximates listings of prisoner of war camp inmates. This file is arranged by code number, each of which typically represents a major prisoner of war camp; for some camps, however, there are two codes. For each code, the rosters are thereunder arranged by individual Axis unit, by category of unit, or by service branch. The roster includes prisoner of war names, internment serial numbers, ranks, dates of birth and capture, and identities of subordinate units. This series also documents specialized categories of prisoners of war. Arranged alphabetically by subject or by type of record. Boxes 2468-2714 location: 290/34/24/4.

Civilian Alien Internee Case Files 1941-1945 (0389-A1-465)
Documents the cases of paroled German, Italian, and Japanese alien internees, including judgments of internees' character, loyalty, and personal habits, as well as affidavits and appeals by the internees requesting parole. Arranged alphabetically by internee name. Boxes 2058-1064 location: 290/34/32/03.

Prisoner of War Rosters 1949-1957 (0389-A1-466)
Series consists of three types of rosters as follows: (1) German, Japanese, Italian, Hungarian, Polish, Austrian, and other World War II rosters that list the prisoner's name and serial number; (2) rosters of deceased Chinese Communists that give the prisoner's name, his identification number, date and place of death, and grave location; and (3) United Nations Command rosters of Chinese and Korean Communist internees, and exchanged, escaped, or dead prisoners of war, giving some or all of the following information: name and number of the prisoner of war; cause, date, and place of death; and location of grave. Arranged by type of roster. The names on each roster are arranged alphabetically by surname of prisoner of war.

Numeric-Subject Correspondence File Relating to the Internment, Care, and Labor of Prisoners of War 1942-1946 (0389-A1-467)
Some records relate solely to American prisoners of war in Axis custody, including the provision of emergency relief to U.S. prisoners of war in Japanese custody (file 1.6.7) and the wartime repatriation of American prisoners of war (1.28). Most of the series concerns prisoners of war and internees held in the United States. Arranged according to a numeric-subject filing scheme. Boxes 1508-1532 location: 290/35/10/05.

Subject Correspondence File Relating to the Internment, Care, and Labor of POWs, 1942-1946 (0389-A1-467A)

Labor and Liaison Branch

Subject Correspondence File, 1942-1946 (0389-A1-467C)
The series documents virtually all aspects of prisoner of war operations, especially those applicable during the 1945-1946 period. Most useful are the "policy book" files, which present in condensed form all the standard regulations and policies governing the treatment of prisoners of war and the facilities in which they were housed. Arranged alphabetically by subject. Boxes 1552-1580 location: 290/35/11/04.

General Correspondence 1942-1957 (0389-A1-467D)
Letters, lists, memorandums, reports, studies, and other records that relate to bureau organization, functions, policies and procedures. Included are instructions with copies of related forms regarding the administration of enemy prisoner of war records; instructions and policy statements concerning the repatriation of enemy prisoners of war; reporting instructions; lists of Italian and Japanese prisoners of war records transferred to the custody of their respective governments; policy statements regarding financial claims of enemy prisoners of war; and rosters of deceased Italian and Japanese prisoners of war. Also included are comprehensive listings of Italian prisoners of war and Japanese prisoners of war whose records were transferred to the postwar governments established in those countries, 1949-1952; death rosters of deceased Italian prisoners of war and Japanese prisoners of war and civilian internees; and several official publications apparently used as reference (e.g., a collection of standard operating procedures used by the Prisoner of War Information Bureau). Arranged according to the War Department Decimal Classification Scheme and in part by type of record (e.g., lists of prisoners). Boxes 1-15 location: 290/35/12/02.

Miscellaneous Records 1942-1957 (0389-A1-467E)

Letters, lists, memorandums, reports, studies, and other records that relate to enemy prisoner of war administration, procedures, and history. Included are records relating to enemy prisoner of war courts-martial; a typescript history of the bureau that was used in the preparation of a history of the activities of the Provost Marshal General during World War II; organization charts; and copies of the bureau's "Standard Operating Procedures." The data contained in this series is most useful for postwar compilations of specific prisoner of war categories. File 400.19 Statistics, for example, furnishes cumulative data on the numbers of German, Italian, and Japanese prisoners of war held in the United States and in overseas theaters, and the numbers of prisoner of war deaths, transfers, and repatriations at and after war's end. Lists of deceased prisoners of war who were buried in the United States are contained in file 314.6 "Interred in US." The series also provides a history of the Prisoner of War Information Bureau, December 1941-August 1957. Arranged in part according to the War Department Decimal Classification Scheme, but the remainder is unarranged. Boxes 1-8 location: 290/35/12/04.

World War II Operations Reports 1940-1948 Pacific Theater 98-GHQ1-ATIS (0407-NM3-427)

During World War II the Allied Translator and Interpreter Section (ATIS), GHQ, SWPA, produced various types of publications, primarily based on captured documents and interrogations. Copies of these publications were widely disseminated. No one Record Group contains a complete set of the publications. However, this series contains one of the most complete sets.

Information of an urgent operation nature was translated and immediately distributed in the form of "Spot Reports" directed to the offices of headquarters concerned. Advanced ATIS Spot Reports (189 published) were translations issued by Advanced ATIS and distributed immediately with priority over all other publications for reasons of urgency and information of immediate tactical value. ATIS Spot Reports were only issued when information considered to be of immediate operational value had reached Base ATIS without knowing whether it had been seen by tactical units forward. In the early stages this was due to imperfect forward organization, and in many instances, the failure to note on documents, particularly maps, whether or not they had been seen by operational command. Other documents, translated only in part, were published in 2,190 ATIS Bulletins. These bulletins, identifying documents and their classification, were distributed to the various intelligence agencies of the Allied Armed Forces. Advanced ATIS Bulletins were translations by Advanced ATIS to ensure the rapid dissemination of information considered to be of immediate value.[16] Detailed translations followed in the form of Current Translation and Enemy Publications, which were published at weekly intervals or more frequently if dictated by exigency.

The ATIS Information Section supplied information derived from interrogations; translations; and situation reports, intelligence summaries, maps, photos, and other outside publications. During the period October 1942-July 1943, the work of indexing, abstracting, and collating information from captured documents and prisoners of war, answering internal queries, and providing information to assist translators and examiners, was carried on by a staff consisting of 6 officers and 10 enlisted personnel. In May 1943 external requests for information available from ATIS sources led to the development of Information Request Reports published only in answer to specific requests for information. As the body of available material continued to grow, The Information Section produced Information Bulletins on subjects of general interest. Both Information Request Reports and Information Bulletins were supplanted in June 1944 by Research Reports that fulfilled both requirements. The information contained in these reports was bibliographically indexed.

16. General Headquarters, Far East Command, Military Intelligence Section, General Staff, Operations of The Allied Translator and Interpreter Section, GHA, SWPA, Volume V, Intelligence Series, 1948, pp. 11, 41, 54-55; Allied Translation and Interpreter Section, South West Pacific Area, ATIS Publication No. 6 "The Exploitation of Japanese Documents" (December 14, 1944) p. 11.

These reports were usually issued as a direct result of a request for a study by the War or Navy Departments or by the Allies services or when sufficient information on any subject had been collated to warrant publication. Over 120 Research Reports, many relating to tactical and strategic matters, were published.

The Research Reports covered many topics. Some of the research reports dealt with military and naval matters, such as No. 67 (Japanese Warships and Merchant Vessels Sunk, Damaged or not Previously Listed); No. 87 (Japanese Mines and Minesweeping); and, Nos. 99-108 (Japanese Place Names-Philippines). Others included information about the Psychology in the Japanese Armed Forces (No. 76) and Japanese efforts to fight Plague and Cholera (No. 92). Report No. 84 dealt with The Japanese and Bacterial Warfare. It included excerpts from Japanese captured documents on their research and use of bacterial warfare. Report No. 117, Infringement of the Laws of War and Ethics by the Japanese Medical Corps, contains information on violations of the Geneva Convention on the rules of warfare and points out how, time and again, medical personnel put to death their own patients. Report No. 119 deals with the Japanese Military Police Service and Report No. 126 is "Hoko: The Spy-Hostage System of Group Control-The Clue to Japanese Psychology." On April 29, 1944, Research Report No. 72 (formerly ATIS Information Bulletin No. 14) was published and entitled "Japanese Violations of the Laws of War." The report contained 28 pages of translations, each translation accompanied by a photostatic copy of the original document and authenticated under oath by the translator. Supplements No. I and II were published on March 19, 1945, and June 23, 1945, respectively.[17]

Current Translations were publications containing complete translations of documents. Over 170 were published, including many extracts from diaries and notebooks. Current Translation No. 141, for example, contained prisoner of war poems. Full translations of captured enemy publications such as field manuals, technical manuals, intelligence reports, were published as Enemy Publications. Often they consisted of combined translations of several documents relating to the same subject, such as No. 255 Procedures in interrogating and handling [Allied] prisoners of war. More than 420 of these documents were published. Included among them are No. 6 Hawaii-Malaya Operations; No. 7 Bismark Sea Operations; No. 64 and 78 U.S. Army Combat Methods; No. 123 and 145 File of intelligence reports on operations in SWPA; No. 131 Handbook for submarine and airplane spotters; No. 222 Military Police intelligence, propaganda, pacification, and fifth column activities; No. 237 Personal punishment, military discipline, legal punishment of enemy air personnel, court martial judgment, air raid defense measures; No. 239 Regulations concerning employment of prisoners of war and supervision of troops returning to Japan; No. 255 Procedure in interrogating and handling prisoners of war; No. 278 Malaya campaign 1941-1942; No. 285 Lessons from New Guinea operations July 1942-April 1943; No. 300 Lessons from New Guinea Campaign.

Production of ATIS Publications began in March 1943. These were a special, individual work, compiled for general reference purposes. They were prepared and distributed as a result of a specific need and represented a form of publication for matters outside the usual range of translations and reports. They included: No. 1 List of Japanese Military Conventional Signs and Abbreviations (March 4, 1943); No. 2 Alphabetical List of 40,000 Japanese Army Officer (May 1943); No. 3 Glossary of military terms encountered in Japanese documents; No. 4 Bibliographic Index used for all ATIS publications; No. 5 Bibliographic Subject Index for Enemy Publications 1-200 (November 30, 1944), with a supplementary index from 201-300 (March 1945); No. 6 "The Exploitation of Japanese Documents" (December 14, 1944); No. 10 "Restoration of Captured Documents" (June 28, 1945). Publication No 7. was cancelled and there is no record that No 11, "Factors in Japanese Military Psychology" was ever completed, although the material intended for this publication could have been used instead for Research Report No 76, Part 4, "Prominent Factors in Japanese Military Psychology." No. 9, Japanese-English Medical Dictionary, contained several thousand terms and combinations never before printed in any Japanese-English medical dictionary. Publication No. 8 was Kanji Abbreviations, Variants, and Equivalents.

The ATIS Philippine Island Research Section produced many publications prior to the invasion. Among them were Philippine Series Bulletins representing special reports of items pertaining to the Philippine Islands, e.g., PI Series Bulletin No. 12 Information on Air Units in the Philippines. The timely publication of 18 of these reports afforded a wealth of information preparatory to the invasion. They were discontinued with the dissolution of the Philippine Islands Research Section of ATIS on October 9, 1944. In late September 1944 ATIS was urgently requested to compile lists of Japanese place names for all of the major islands of the Philippines. Very quickly ATIS published eight Research Reports covering place names throughout the Philippine Islands and distributed these prior to the Allied attack on Leyte by the 6th Army in October.

Limited Distribution Reports were highly classified, special reports, consisting of translations of documents of the highest intelligence value or of immediate importance, issued from time to time as directed. These reports totaled 104 in number. No. 16 dealt with interrogation of captured American B-24 air crew; No. 17 with Allied and Japanese Operations Among Natives of Dutch New Guinea; No. 25 with Anti-Japanese activities in Java; and No. 39 with Navy Operations, Plans and Orders (1941-1944). There were also other ATIS publications, based on captured documents and interrogations, such as Advanced Echelon Reports, Philippine Series Translations, and Interrogation Spot Reports.

The total number of pages of documents printed and distributed monthly increased from about 20,000 in January 1943 to some 430,000 in January 1944 and almost 2 million in January 1945, when a wartime peak was reached.

Americal Division (23rd Infantry Division)
TASK Force 6814 was activated at the New York Port of Embarkation on January 14, 1942. Under the command of then Brig. Gen. Alexander M. Patch, the Task Force sailed for the Pacific Theater via the Panama Canal. On March 12 the convoy and naval escort arrived in the harbor of Noumea, New Caledonia and the troops debarked. The mission of the Task Force was to hold New Caledonia against enemy attack.

Task Force 6814 was reorganized and constituted as the Americal Division on May 24, 1942, to become the only Army division not designated by number. The Americal derived its name from the phrase, "Americans in New Caledonia."

24th Infantry Division

The 24th Infantry Division was activated February 25, 1921 in Hawaii as the Hawaiian Division and redesignated the 24th Infantry Division on August 26, 1941. During the war it was commanded by Maj. Gen. Durward S. Wilson (October 1941-August 1942), Maj. Gen. Frederick A. Irving (August 1942-November 1944), Maj. Gen. Roscoe B. Woodruff (November 1944-November 10, 1945), Brig. Gen. Kenneth F. Cramer (November 1945-December 1945), and Maj. Gen. James A. Lester (December 1945-January 16, 1948).

The 24th Infantry Division was among the first to see combat in World War II and among the last to stop fighting. The division was on Oahu, with headquarters at Schofield Barracks, when the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor, December 7, 1941. In May 1943 it was alerted for movement to Australia and by September 19, 1943, had completed the move to Camp Caves, near Rockhampton, on the eastern coast of Australia. After a period of intensive training, the division moved to Goodenough Island, January 31, 1944, to stage for the Hollandia-Tanahmerah campaign. The 24th landed on Dutch New Guinea, April 22, 1944, and smashed its way to and seized the important Hollandia Airdrome. Shortly after the Hollandia landing, on June 18, the 24th Infantry Regiment moved to Biak to reinforce the 41st Infantry Division, and captured Sorido and Borokoe airdromes before returning to the division on Hollandia in July. After occupation duty in the Hollandia area, the 24th Division landed on Red Beach on Leyte, October 20, 1944, as part of the X Corps, Sixth Army, and driving up Leyte Valley advanced to Jaro and took Breakneck Ridge, November 12, 1944.

While mopping up continued on Leyte, the 19th Regimental Combat Team moved to Mindoro Island as part of the Western Visayan Task Force, landing in the San Jose area, December 15, 1944. Airfields and a PT base were secured for operations on Luzon. Divisional elements affected a landing on Marinduque Island. Other elements supported the 11th Airborne Division drive from Nasugbu to Manila. The 34th Regimental Combat Team, landing at San Antonio, Luzon, January 29, 1945, ran into a furious battle on Zig Zag Pass. On February 16, 1945 the 3d Battalion of the 24th Infantry took part in the amphibious landing on Corregidor. After numerous mopping up actions in March, the division landed on Mindanao, April 17, cut across the island to Digos, April 27, stormed into Davao, May 3, and cleared Libby Airdrome, May 13. Although the campaign closed officially on June 30, the division continued to mop up Japanese resistance during July and August 1945. Patrolling continued after the official surrender of Japan. On October 15, 1945, the Division left Mindanao for Japan.

25th Infantry Division

The 25th Infantry Division was activated October 10, 1941 in Hawaii. During the war it was commanded by Maj. Gen. Maxwell Murray (October 1941-May 1942), Maj. Gen. J. Lawton Collins (May 1942-January 1944), and Maj. Gen. Charles L. Mullins, Jr. (January 1944-May 15, 1948).

The 25th began moving to Guadalcanal, November 25, 1942, to relieve Marines near Henderson Field. First elements landed near the Tenaru River, December 17, 1942, and entered combat January 10, 1943, participating in the seizure of Kokumbona and the reduction of the Mount Austen Pocket. The threat of large enemy attacks caused a temporary withdrawal, but division elements under XIV Corps control relieved the 147th Infantry and took over the advance on Cape Esperance. The junction of these elements with Americal Division forces near the Cape, February 5, 1943, ended organized enemy resistance. A period of garrison duty followed, ending July 21. On that date, advance elements debarked on Munda, New Georgia. The 35th Infantry, under the Northern Landing Force, took part in the capture of Vella Lavella, August 15 to September 15, 1943. Meanwhile, other elements landed on New Georgia, took Zieta, marched through jungle mud for 19 days, and captured Bairoko Harbor, winning the island. Elements cleared Arundel Island, September 24, 1943, and Kolombangara Island with its important Vila Airport, October 6. Organized resistance on New Georgia ended on August 25, and the division moved to New Zealand for rest and training, with the last elements arriving on December 5. The 25th was transferred to New Caledonia, February 3-March 14, 1944, for continued training. The division landed in the San Fabian area of Luzon, January 11, 1945, to enter the struggle for the liberation of the Philippines. It drove across the Luzon Central Plain, meeting the Japanese at Binalonan, January 17. The 25th occupied Umingan, Lupao, and San Jose and destroyed a great part of the Japanese armor on Luzon. On February 21, the Division began operations in the Caraballo Mountains. It fought its way along Highway

No. 5, taking Digdig, Putlan, and Kapintalan and took Balete Pass, May 13, and opened the gateway to the Cagayan Valley, May 27, with the capture of Santa Fe. Until June 30, when the division was relieved, it carried out mopping-up activities. On July 1, the division moved to Tarlac for training, leaving for Japan, September 20.

27th Infantry Division

The 27th Infantry Division was activated October 15, 1940. During the war it was commanded by Maj, Gen. William N. Haskell (October 1940-October 1941), Brig. Gen. Ralph McT. Pennell (November 1941-October 1942), Maj. Gen. Ralph C. Smith (November 1942-May 1944), Maj. Gen. George W. Griner, Jr. (June 1944-December 1945).

The 27th Infantry Division arrived in Hawaii, May 21, 1942, to defend the outer islands from amphibious attack. Elements of the division first saw action in the attack and capture of Makin Atoll in the Gilbert Islands, November 21-24, 1943. One battalion of the 106th Regiment participated in the attack on Eniwetok Atoll, February 19-26, 1944, returning to Oahu in March. During this mission, one battalion landed unopposed on Majuro Island, February 1, and completed its seizure, February 3. The division began preparations for the Marianas operations, March 15. On D-plus-1-day, June 16, 1944, elements landed at night on Saipan to support the 2nd and 4th Marines. A bridgehead was established and Aslito Airfield captured, June 18. Fighting continued throughout June. During the months of July and August, the 27th cleaned out isolated pockets in the mountains and cliffs of Saipan. Beginning in the middle of August, the division moved to the New Hebrides for rest and rehabilitation. On March 25, 1945, the 27th sailed from Espiritu Santo, arriving at Okinawa, April 9. The division participated in the XXIV Corps general attack, April 19, securing a dominating ridge line south of Machinato and Kakazu. Machinato Airfield was captured, April 28. On May 1, the division was relieved by the 1st Marine Division and attached to the Island Command for garrison duty. Tori Shima was seized, May 12, without opposition. The 27th attacked from the south end of Ishikawa Isthmus to sweep the northern sector of Okinawa. The Japanese fought bitterly on Onnatake Hill from May 23 until 2 June, before losing the strong point. After a mopping-up period, the division left Okinawa, September 7, moved to Japan and occupied Niigata and Fukushima Prefectures. The unit returned to the United States December 15 and was inactivated December 31, 1945.

32nd Infantry Division

The 32nd Infantry Division was activated October 15, 1940 (National Guard Division from Michigan and Wisconsin). During the war it would be commanded by Maj. Gen. Irving A. Fish (October 1940-March 1942), Maj. Gen. Edwin F. Harding (March 1942-January 1943) Maj. Gen. William H. Gill (February 1943 to inactivation).

The 32d Infantry Division arrived in Australia May 14, 1942. The first element of the division entered the combat zone by air for Port Moresby September 16, to be joined by other elements arriving by sea September 28 and by air October 2. Units of the 32nd were deployed defensively along the Goldie River on the left flank of the Australian garrison force for the Port Moresby area. Fighting along the Goldie River to protect the Australian left flank, the 32nd drove the enemy back along the Kokoda Trail and stopped the enemy threat to Port Moresby. Elements were flown to the Buna area where they were joined November 15 by the 2nd Battalion of the 126th Infantry which had trekked over the Owen Stanley Mountains. The struggle for Buna-Sanananda was completed January 22, 1943, and the 32nd returned to Australia for rest and training. On January 2, 1944 elements landed at Saidor and helped to end enemy resistance April 14. On April 23 elements took part in the landing at Aitape; the division arriving on May 3. After meeting slight initial resistance, the 32nd had to withstand savage counterattacks in the Drinumor River area. By August 31 Aitape was secured and the division rested. Elements landed on Morotai on September 15. The 32nd Command Post opened at Hollandia October 1 to stage for the Philippines. It landed on Leyte, November 14, and went into action along the Pinamopoan-Ormoc highway, taking Limon and smashing the Yamashita line. Union with elements of 1st Cavalry Division in the vicinity of Lonoy, December 22, marked the collapse of Japanese resistance in the upper Ormoc Valley. From Leyte the division moved to Lingayen Gulf, Luzon, January 27, 1945. It pushed up the Villa Verde Trail January 30, and after more than 100 days of fighting took Imugan and met the 25th Infantry Division near Santa Fe May 28, securing Balete Pass, the gateway to the Cagayan Valley. While some elements continued mopping-up activities near Imugan, other units moved to rest and rehabilitation centers. Active elements secured the Baguio area, wiped out Japanese groups in the Agno River Valley area, and opened Highway 11 as a supply route. Operations ceased on August 15, and the Division moved to Japan for occupation duty October 20. The unit was inactivated February 28, 1946, in Japan.

37th Infantry Division

The 37th Infantry Division was activated October 15, 1940 (National Guard Division from Ohio). Overseas: May 26, 1942. Maj. Gen. Robert S. Beightler commanded the division during World War II.

The 37th Infantry Division arrived in the Fiji Islands in June 1942 to fortify the islands against possible invasion. The division continued its training on the islands. With the end of ground fighting on Guadalcanal, the division moved to that island in April 1943, continued training, and staged for the Munda campaign. Two battalions joined the Marines on New Georgia, July 5, 1943, while the remainder of the division landed, July 22, and assisted the 43rd Infantry Division in taking Munda airfield. After mopping up on New Georgia, the division returned to Guadalcanal, September 9, for rest and rehabilitation. The division's next assignment was Bougainville. Relieving Marine units, November 8-19, 1943, the 37th took over the perimeter defense of the area, constructed roads and bridges, and engaged in extensive patrol activity. In March 1944, two Japanese divisions made eight major attacks, but division lines held. In April patrols cleared the Laruma Valley area of major enemy units. The division remained on Bougainville and trained for the Luzon campaign. Landing with the Sixth Army on the beaches of Lingayen Gulf, January 9, 1945, the 37th raced inland against slight resistance to Clark Field and Fort Stotsenburg, where fierce resistance delayed capture of those objectives until January 31. The division continued to drive to Manila against small delaying forces, and entered the city's outskirts, February 4. Upon crossing the Pasig River, it ran into bitter Japanese opposition, and it took heavy street fighting to clear the city by March 3. After garrison duty in Manila, March 5-26, the division shifted to the hills of Northwest Luzon, where heavy fighting culminated in the capture of Baguio April 26. Rest and rehabilitation during May were followed by action in June in the Cagayan Valley against deteriorating Japanese resistance. With the end of hostilities August 15, the division was concerned with the collection and processing of prisoners of war, leaving November 1945 for the United States and demobilization. The unit was inactivated December 18, 1945.

40th Infantry Division

The 40th Infantry Division was activated on March 3, 1941 (National Guard Division from California and Utah). It was commanded by Maj. Gen. Walter P. Story (March-September 1941), Maj. Gen. Ernest J. Dawley (September 1941-April 1942), Maj. Gen. Rapp Brush (April 1942-July 1945), and Brig. Gen. Donald J. Myers (July 1945 to inactivation). It returned to the Untied States on April 7, 1946 and was inactivated that day.

The 40th Infantry Division's first overseas assignment was the defense of outer islands of Hawaii, where it arrived in September 1942. Training continued as defensive positions were improved and maintained. In July 1943 the division was concentrated on Oahu and relieved the 24th of the defense of the North Sector. Relieved of the North Sector in October 1943, the 40th entered upon a period of intensive amphibious and jungle training. On December 20, the first units left for Guadalcanal, and by mid-January 1944, movement was completed, and the division prepared for its first combat assignment. On April 24, it left Guadalcanal for New Britain. The Regiments of the division took positions at Talasea on the northern side of the island, at Arawe on the southern side, and at Gape Gloucester near the western end. Neutralization of the Japanese was effected by patrols. No major battle was fought. The 40th was relieved of missions on New Britain, November 27, and began training for the Luzon landing. Sailing from Borgen Bay December 9, the division made an assault landing at Lingayen, Luzon, under command of XIV Corps, on January 9, 1945. Seizing Lingayen airfield, the division occupied Bolinao Peninsula and San Miguel, and advanced toward Manila, running into heavy fighting in the Fort Stotsenburg area and the Bambam Hills. Snake Hill and Storm King Mountain were taken in February and the 40th was relieved on March 2. Leaving Luzon on March 15 to cut behind the Japanese, the division landed on Panay Island on the 18th and knocked out Japanese resistance within 10 days, seizing airfields at Santa Barbara and Mandurriao. On March 29, it landed at Pulupandan, Negros and advanced through Bacolod toward Talisay, which it secured by April 2. After mopping up on Negros Island, the division returned to Panay in June and July 1945. In September 1945, the division moved to Korea for occupation duty.

41st Infantry Division

The 41st Infantry Division was activated September 16, 1940 (National Guard Division from Idaho, Montana, Oregon, Washington, and Wyoming). During the war it would be commanded by Maj. Gen. George A. White (September 1940-November 1941), Brig. Gen. Carlos A. Rennington (November-December 1941), Maj. Gen. Horace H. Fuller (December 1941-June 1944), Maj. Gen. Jens A. Doe (June 1944 to inactivation).

The 41st Infantry Division arrived in Australia, April 7, 1942, and underwent intensive training. The 163rd Regiment entered the struggle for the defense of Port Moresby, New Guinea, at Dobadura, January 2, 1943, and fought continuously along the Sanananda track until January 22nd. A period of patrolling and training followed while elements of the Regiment advanced against stiff resistance to the Kumisi River in February. The 163rd left for Australia, July 15, 1943. The 162nd Regiment relieved the 163rd in the Sanananda-Killerton-Gona area and the outpost area at the mouth of the Kumisi River, February 1943, leapfrogged along the coast in the Morobe area, and fought the long Salamaua campaign, June 29 to September 12, 1943. On April 22, 1944, the 163rd Regiment landed at Aitape and the remainder of the division came ashore at Humboldt Bay near Hollandia. Hollandia, and the Cyclops and Sentani Airdromes fell after ineffectual resistance, and the division patrolled and mopped up until relieved on May 4. The 163rd landed against slight opposition at Arara, May 17, and consolidated the Arara and Toem area. Wakde Island was taken, May 18-20. Biak Island was invaded May 27, and a period of jungle fighting followed. Elements landed at Korim Bay and Wardo August 17 to prevent an enemy escape, and the division was occupied with patrols and training until February 8, 1945. On that date, it arrived at Mindoro, Philippine Islands. On February 28 the 186th landed on Palawan Island, completing the occupation by March 8. The rest of the 41st landed at Zamboanga, Mindanao on March 10. Japanese opposition was dissipated early in April. Unopposed elements took Basilan Island, March 16-30, Sanga-Sanga, April 2, and Jolo, April 9. While elements fought northwest of Davao, the rest of the division continued patrolling and mopping-up activities in the Southern Philippines until VJ Day. Occupational duty followed in Japan until inactivation on December 31, 1945.

Vela Cela and Baanga were taken easily, but the Japanese resisted stubbornly on Arundel Island before withdrawing, September 22. After training at Munda, the 43rd moved to Guadalcanal and then to New Zealand for rest and rehabilitation. On July 19, 1944, the division assumed defensive positions at Aitape, and engaged in patrols and reconnaissance at Tadji and along the Drinumor River, July 25. It took the offensive August 8, 1944, ending organized resistance on August 25. On January 9, 1945, the 43rd made an assault landing in the San Fabian area, Lingayen Gulf, Luzon. The 81st Infantry Division landed in Hawaii, June 11-July 8, 1944. The division minus Regimental Combat Team 323 invaded Angaur Island in the Palau group September 17, and pushed through to the western shore in a quick movement, cutting the island in half. The enemy was driven into isolated pockets and mopping-up operations began on September 20. Regimental Combat Team 321, attached to the 1st Marine Division, went into action on Peleliu Island in the Palaus and assisted in splitting defense forces and isolating them in mountainous areas in the central part of the island. The team aided in mopping-up Ngesebus Island and capturing Kongauru and Garakayo Islands. Regimental Combat Team 323, under naval task force command, occupied Ulithi Island, September 21-23, 1944. Elements of the team landed on Ngulu Atoll and destroyed enemy personnel and installations, October 16, completing the outflanking of the enemy base at Yap. On October 18 Regimental Combat Team 323 left to rejoin the 81st on Peleliu, which assumed command of all troops on that island and Angaur, October 20. Resistance ended on Peleliu, November 27. Between November 4, 1944 and January 1, 1945, the division seized Pulo Anna Island, Kyangel Atoll, and Pais Island. The 81st left in increments from January 1 to February 8 for New Caledonia for rehabilitation and training. The division arrived in Leyte on May 17, and after a period of training participated in mopping-up operations in the northwest part of the island, July 21 to August 12, 1945. 96th Infantry Division

The 96th Infantry Division was activated August 15, 1942. It was commanded by Maj. Gen. James L. Bradley throughout its entire life in World War II. It returned to the United States on February 2, 1946, and inactivated February 3, 1946.

The 96th Infantry Division trained in Hawaiian Islands July to September 1944, before entering combat in an assault landing in Leyte Gulf, Philippine Islands, between Tanauan and Dulag, October 20. Japanese resistance in the beachhead area was quickly broken, and the division had advanced to and secured the Tanauan-Dagami-Tabontabon sector by November 9, after heavy fighting. The division continued to wipe out resistance on the island, engaging in small unit actions, patrolling, probing, and wiping out pockets of Japanese. Chalk Ridge was taken, December 12, and major organized resistance was at an end by Christmas Day. The next three months were spent in mopping up, security duty, training, and loading for the coming invasion of Okinawa.

The division left the Philippines, March 27, 1945, for Okinawa, making an assault landing on the island, April 1. The landing was unopposed, and a beachhead was established near Sunabe, April 1-3. Resistance stiffened considerably as the division advanced to Gakazu Ridge, where fighting was fierce April 7-16. The 96th assaulted and cracked the enemy defense line, Tanabaru Nishibaru April 17-23, and after advancing slightly against extremely determined resistance, was relieved, April 30, by the 77th Infantry Division. The 96th Division trained and rested May 1-9, while elements mopped up bypassed enemy pockets and then returned to the offensive May 10, attacking and capturing Conical-Sugar Hill Ridge May 21, thus breaking the right flank of the Shuri defenses. Heavy rains the following week slowed down the advance. The offensive was resumed May 30, against weakening enemy resistance; Japanese north of Yonabaru-Shuri-Naha Road area were cleared out. Resistance stiffened again June 3, and Laura Hill was taken June 14, only after a bloody fight. The last important Japanese defense position, the Yuza-Dake, Yaeju-Dake Hill mass, was secured by June 17, and on June 22 all resistance was declared at an end. The division patrolled an area from Chan to Ogusuku until June 30. After resting in July, the division left Okinawa for Mindoro, in the Philippines, and engaged in a training program. The division left the Philippines January 17, 1946, for the United States.

The Philippine Archives Collection

The Recovered Personnel Division (RPD) was created in Leyte in January 1945, three months after the start of the liberation of the Philippines, to set up operations for the recovery and care of captured American and Allied military and civilian personnel. It began with a staff of two, as part of a G-1 office, but quickly grew into a separate section with a staff of 90, and moved to offices in Manila. When the U.S. Army Forces in the Far East (USAFFE) was dissolved in June 1945, the RPD became a branch of the Personnel Division of the Adjutant General's Office, U.S. Armed Forces in the Pacific (AFPAC), with Lt Col E.E. Graham in charge; the following month, Col Morris H. Marcus became Director. With its transfer to the Adjutant General's Office (AGO), the RPD began the first phase of its mission.

In July 1945 the Recovered Personnel Detachment was organized under the supervision of the Recovered Personnel Division. It consisted of a small operating headquarters and 75 teams of officers and enlisted men who were given special training in processing released prisoners of war. Teams were attached to combat units prior to landings in Japan and Korea, at which time they were immediately sent to all POW camps in the unit area. At the camps, they took affidavits from each person to rebuild their personal history; prepared a message to be radioed to the next of kin, with notification of release and health status; and forwarded all papers to branch headquarters of RPD in Yokohama and later Tokyo. The teams also arranged transportation to Manila for recovered personnel by air or hospital ship. The teams consisted of American, British, Canadian, Australian, and Dutch representatives. A total of 35,000 Allied prisoners of war were released and returned to Manila within 30 days after the initial landings.

A related section of the RPD was the Casualty Branch, which had the task of investigating cases of U.S. military personnel in the Pacific Area who were still carried in a status of missing, missing in action, presumed dead, or declared dead. The Pacific area was divided into zones to which search teams were assigned. The teams combed all areas where plane crashes might have, or were known to have occurred. Upon receipt of inquiries relative to missing army personnel, the Casualty Branch gathered all information available from its records, sought additional data from every possible source, and sometimes sent out special search teams. After all data on an individual had been compiled and studied, the branch made a recommendation on change of status to the proper authorities. When the branch was later dissolved, its records were turned over to the Graves Registration Service.

As the war ended, the U.S. government was faced with identifying and clarifying the status of various military forces. The Philippine Army had been organized in 1935, and consisted of Filipinos commanded by U.S. Army officers. Its mission was to organize and train an army for the defense of the future independent Republic of the Philippines. In the latter part of 1941, before the outbreak of war, all members of the Philippine Army were inducted into USAFFE, along with U.S. Army forces. During the war, many guerrilla groups were organized, a number of them with General MacArthur's blessings. These recognized units were considered to be part of the Philippine Army, hence part of USAFFE. Other guerrilla units were anti-American in focus, working to eliminate both Japanese and Americans from Philippine soil; still others were little more than collections of bandits and thieves. The Philippine Scouts was a much older organization than the Philippine Army and had been considered a part of the U.S. Army ever since its inception in the early 1900s, and thus the Scout organization was also included in USAFFE in 1941.

In November 1945 the RPD was assigned a new mission when the Missing Persons Act was extended to cover Philippine Army personnel, including guerrillas. (This act provided for continued disbursement of pay and allowances to military and civilian personnel who were prisoners of war, missing in action, in casualty status, or otherwise prevented from being at post of duty.) Teams were sent throughout the Philippine Islands to process these people. More than 350,000 individual claimants were interviewed, their claims processed, adjudicated, and sent to Philippine Army Finance for payment. The size of the RPD increased to more than 2,000 employees. Two branches were established in 1947 to deal with the problems involved with this extension of the Missing Persons Act.

The Project "J" Branch handled the claims of Philippine Scouts, U.S. Army personnel, and War Department civilian employees, for arrears in pay and/or benefits. The branch examined the available documentation and made a determination on the validity of the claims. For deceased claims, an adjudicator made a determination of death, status, and grades under the Missing Persons Act.

The Philippine Army Branch of the RPD was concerned with payment of arrears in pay of members and former members of the Philippine Army (PA) while in the service of the Armed Forces of the United States. The branch had several sections. The Living Claims Section processed and adjudicated claims for arrears in pay of living PA personnel ordered into the service of the U.S., and approved or disapproved requests for confirmation of promotion of former USAFFE officers and men prior to surrender. The Deceased Claims Section processed claims for arrears in pay and quarters allowances due estates of deceased PA servicemen (members of USAFFE or duly recognized civilian guerrillas). The adjudication of civilian guerrilla claims started in October 1946.

The Veterans Administration Section of the PA Branch, RPD, was organized in August 1946, to obtain records and certify accounts of members of the Philippine Army and eligible dependents who filed claims for benefits in the Manila Office of the Veterans Administration.

The Operations Section of the PA Branch was concerned with processing pay for Terminal Date guerrilla organizations, those units that were recognized for a specified period of time. The work consisted of securing the individual history of each unit member and establishing payrolls or pay vouchers, physical examination, and discharge for all personnel.
During the first half of 1948, the major activity of the RPD was the adjudication of all PA arrears-in-pay cases prior to the June 30, 1948 deadline on the filing of claims. In September of the same year, the "Adjustment Section," Headquarters, Philippine Command, was established as a Special Staff Section for the purpose of consolidating the functions and activities of "Claims Service" and RPD insofar as they pertained to redetermination and reconsideration of claims and arrears in pay matters. The "Claims Service" had been established in October 1944, as a special staff section of USAFFE to supervise investigation, processing, and settlement of claims relating to Army activities. These were generally concerned with employee compensation, war damage, property requisition, and procurement and wages. The Adjutant General Records Depository (AGRD) was also established in September 1948, as a branch of the Adjutant General's Section. It was composed of the Project "J" and PA Branches of RPD, as well as the Records Division of Claims Service. In February 1949 the missions and functions of the Adjustment Section were transferred to AGRD.

The mission of AGRD had several components: certification to the VA of military service of former members of Philippine Army, Philippine Scouts, guerrillas, and U.S. Army during World War II; certification of military service to the Adjutant General, the U.S. Army Finance Officer, and the GAO; processing of cases of U.S. Army, Philippine Scouts, and War Department civilian personnel, and shipment of each completed 201 folder to Demobilized Personnel Records Branch, Records Administration Center in St. Louis; investigation of Philippine claims filed with Office of Judge Advocate General of Army for U.S. Court of Claims; processing of all inquiries as to status of claims for arrears in pay, procurement and wage reimbursements, veterans' benefits, and guerrilla recognition. It also retained the following types of records: 201 files of claimants for Philippine Army and guerrilla status; claims for procurement, contract, and wage reimbursements; medical records of veterans; records of guerrilla and USAFFE organizations; certification of POW service to U.S. War Claims Commission for benefits accruing on former Philippine Army personnel inducted into service of USAFFE; and administration of the Missing Persons Act.

The accomplishment of these various missions was hindered by the scattering of AGRD records in a number of locations. Although most of the records were maintained in Manila, certain blocks of records had been transferred elsewhere. In September 1948 the archives of the Guerrilla Archives Division and part of the records necessary for the adjudication of recognition claims by guerrilla units and Philippine Army personnel were transferred to the Demobilized Personnel Records Branch (DPRB) of the Adjutant General's Office in St. Louis, Missouri. Project "J" archives and records, pertaining to U.S. Army units and personnel and U.S. citizens were moved to the same branch around 1951. Claims Service files, consisting of records pertaining to wage and procurement claims, were shipped to the Kansas City Records Center in 1951 and finally to St. Louis in the late 1950s or early 1960s. Other records, relating to intelligence activities and created by G-2 of USAFFE, were maintained by the Office of Special Investigations (OSI) in two places, some at Clark Air Base in the Philippines and the rest in Japan. In 1953, for the purpose of consolidation and efficiency, the AGRD itself was transferred, along with the remainder of its records, to the DPRB in St. Louis. The current collection was accessioned by the National Archives and moved to Washington, D.C. in 1984.

The records constitute an invaluable source of information on the Pacific war, particularly concerning the treatment of prisoners of war; military operations in the Philippines, 1941-

1942; guerrilla warfare in the Philippines; and conditions in the Philippines under Japanese occupation. In addition, the records document the RPD's and successor agencies' activities in performing their tasks. Because of the loss of records and the nature of guerrilla operations, however, the information provided here should not be considered as either comprehensive or completely accurate.

The "Philippine Archives Collection" includes approximately 550 cu. ft. of records and 120 microfilm rolls. Originally arranged according to a numeric filing scheme, the records are now divided into general subject categories and thereunder arranged by more specific subjects or by type of record. Much material, however, has been intermingled among these subject series. Records created between 1941 and 1945 reflect the scarcity of writing paper and include such physical forms as paper bags, tissue paper, scrap paper, labels, receipts, and similar matter. Some records were buried to prevent capture and were retrieved in 1945. These factors contributed to the poor physical condition of many of the records.

It should be also be noted that the microfilm collection is separately filed, with all finding aids. The records reproduced on these rolls often duplicate textual records, but include documents not available elsewhere. The microfilm, consisting of both 16 mm and 35 mm negative rolls, are designated "AGRP-1" through "ARGP-110," although some of these include two or three rolls. A number of records reproduced on these rolls are illegible.

Records of the China-Burma-India Theater of Operations, U.S. Army (CBI)

United States Army Forces, China-Burma-India

Under Maj. Gen. Joseph W. Stillwell as theater commander, the headquarters of the U.S Army Forces, China-Burma-India, usually known as Headquarters USAF, CBI, was established at Chungking in March 1942. Several command posts were located near the scene of combat operations. From March to May 1942, during the first Burma campaign, the forward command post was located at Maymyo, the rear echelon was at Lashio, and headquarters detachments were at Kunming and Calcutta. In May 1942, when the American-Chinese forces were driven from Burma to India, the rear echelon was relocated at New Delhi in order to direct United States forces in India and to operate supply lines in China. The forward echelon was set up at Chungking, to direct American military operations in China. Branch headquarters was located at Kunming. The Kunming branch was disbanded on December 31, 1943. On April 1, 1944, during the India-Burma campaign, the rear echelon at New Delhi was made the main headquarters, and the forward echelon remained at Chungking. On October 24, 1944, after the China-Burma-India Theater was divided, the headquarters at New Delhi was redesignated as Headquarters U.S. Army Forces, India-Burma Theater. The main headquarters at New Delhi included the Deputy Commander, the Chief of Staff, and the Deputy Chief of Staff; general-staff divisions G-2 to G-4; the usual special-staff sections; and boards and committees that supervised special activities.

Between March 1942 and October 1944, several major subordinate commands were set up under this headquarters. Headquarters provided some administrative and supply services to the Office of Strategic Services Detachments in the area; the India-China Division of the Air Transport Command; the Joint Intelligence Collecting Agency, CBI, which operated under the Joint Chiefs of Staff; and the XX Bomber Command, which was controlled by Headquarters Army Air Forces.

United States Forces, India-Burma Theater

U.S. Forces, India-Burma Theater, also known as USF, IBT, was established on October 24, 1944, under Lt. Gen. Daniel I. Sultan. In June 1945 Maj. Gen. Raymond A. Wheeler became commanding general. The command comprised the U.S. Army air, ground, and service forces that operated in India, Burma, Ceylon, Thailand, the Malay States, and Sumatra. It had tactical jurisdiction over most of the old China-Burma-India Theater except China itself and over the Malay Peninsula, Sumatra, and additional territory in Thailand. Its primary task was to continue the support of the Allied Forces in China. As the communications zone for the China Theater, it provided security and maintenance for land lines to China and supply services, material, and equipment for Allied operations in southern and central China. U.S. combat and service troop units of USF, IBT, also participated in and supported the operations of the Southeast Asia Command. They were under the operational control of that Command and under the administrative control of Headquarters USF, IBT. This headquarters was discontinued in 1946.

Headquarters of this command was located at New Delhi from October 1944 until after the war. The organization of headquarters included the Deputy Theater Commander, the Chief of Staff and the Deputy Chief of Staff; general-staff sections, including Historical and Public relations Sections; and a varying number of attached boards and commissions, such as the local Foreign Claims Commission and the American Petroleum Committee. In May 1945 this headquarters took over the functions and personnel of Headquarters Services of Supply, India-Burma Theater.

Records of the Chinese Army in India (CAI IV)

After the collapse of Allied forces in Burma in mid-1942, two Chinese divisions, the new 22nd and the new 38th, withdrew to India. In October 1942 the Chinese Army in India (CAI), which was composed of all Chinese ground troops in India, was put under the command of General Stillwell, the Commanding General of U.S. Army Forces, CBI and the Chief of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's Joint Staff. During 1943 the New 30th Division was flown into India, and joined in April 1944 by the 14th and 50th Divisions. After October 24, 1944, the Chinese Army in India was transferred to General Sultan, commanding general of the U.S. Army Forces, India-Burma Theater. In December 1944, the New 22nd Division and the 14th Division were flown back to China, where they became part of the GHQ reserve. These divisions supported the Allied offensive in Burma by attacking southward from Yunan, helping to clear the Burma Road in January 1945. Another unit organized in India was the Sino-American First Provisional Tank Group which supported American and Chinese operations in Burma.

Headquarters Records

General Headquarters CAI, a joint American-Chinese organization, was established at Ramgarh, India, in June 1942, and was moved to Ledo about December 1944. It was organized in the Chinese Army staff pattern, with the American theater commander as the Commanding General, a Chinese general as the Vice Commander until January 1943, and an American general officer as Chief of Staff for the General Headquarters.

Records of the China Theater of Operations, U.S. Army (CT)

U.S. Forces, China Theater, known as USF, CT, was organized on October 29, 1944, as one of the two successors of U.S. Army Forces, China-Burma-India. Its commanding general, Maj. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, was also made Chief of Staff to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek. It comprised the U.S. Army forces on the mainland of China and the adjacent islands and in Indochina. It continued the operations of its predecessor in that area, including the employment of U.S. air units for tactical, strategic, and ground support operations, the training of Chinese troops, and the logistical support of Chinese air and ground establishments.

Headquarters USF, CT, was located at Chungking. It continued in China the staff functions previous exercised by Headquarters U.S. Army Forces, China-Burma-India, March 1942-October 1944. General Wedemeyer was responsible to the Joint Chiefs of Staff for the control of all U.S. forces in China. As Chief of Staff to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, he advised and assisted the Generalissimo and the Chinese general staff with respect to the training of Chinese troops and their employment against the Japanese forces in China. Headquarters USF, CT, collaborated with the corresponding headquarters in the India-Burma Theater on matters relating to supply, personnel replacements, and material in the China Theater and on matters relating to the Chinese Army in India.

Headquarters at Chungking included the Theater Commander, the Chief of Staff, general-staff sections G-1 to G-5; and the usual special-staff sections. The rear echelon of headquarters (also called the advance section) operated at Kunming from December 13, 1944 to July 1945; it too had general-staff and special-staff sections. The liquidation of USF, CT, was completed in 1946 by the Nanking Headquarters Command. The Nanking Command was discontinued in October 1946, and its remaining personnel were transferred to the Joint United States Military Advisory Group to the Republic of China.

Records of the Y-Force Operations Staff (Y-FOS)

The Y-Force Operations Staff (Y-FOS), activated on April 29, 1943 at Kunming, supervised the organizing, training, and equipping of the Y-Force, which was composed of Chinese Army units in the province of Yunnan, the Chinese Expeditionary Force, and the Yunnan Provincial Troops, which were scattered in southern China and along the French Indo-China border. The Y-FOS consisted of headquarters and liaison groups attached to these Chinese troop organizations. It gave advice and assistance, but it had no operational command over Chinese forces. The Y-FOS served as a branch headquarters of the U.S. Army Forces, CBI, after December 1943. On October 24, 1944, the Y-FOS controlled the newly established China Theater; a month later it was disbanded and its functions were transferred to the newly organized Chinese Training and Combat Command.

Records of the Z-Force Operations Staff (Z-FOS)

The Z-FOS, an American military mission to the Y-Force Operations Staff, was organized at Chungking on December 20, 1943, and moved to Kweilin in February 1944. It assisted Chinese commanders in the reorganization, retraining, and supply of provincial troops and elements of the Chinese Expeditionary Force. The Z-FOS had headquarters at Kweilin and liaison groups attached to several Chinese field headquarters. It served as the liaison agency between these Chinese headquarters and Headquarters USAF, CBI, on training, supply, and operations; supervised training programs in the field; and advised on military operations against the Japanese in central and southeastern China. On October 24, 1944, the Z-FOS became a component of the new China Theater; a month later it was disbanded, and its functions were transferred to the newly organized Chinese Training and Combat Command.

Records of the Chinese Combat Command

The Chinese Training and Combat Command was activated in November 1944, shortly after the China-Burma-India Theater was divided. It concluded the work of the Y-Force and Z-Force Operations Staffs, which had been responsible for providing American training and supply to Chinese divisions. The new command took over the training programs at the Yunnan and the Kweilin Training Centers and continued to assist the Chinese Expeditionary Force in its offensive in central and southern China. In January 1945 the Command was organized in two subordinate administrative commands, the Chinese Training Command (Provisional) and the Chinese Combat Command (Provisional). Under the Chinese Combat Command were six subordinate commands for liaison with the Chinese Army Groups and a liaison team for each Chinese Army or Division. These organizations exercised no tactical or operational control over the Chinese commands.

Records of U.S. Army Forces in the Middle Pacific, 1942-1946
Record Group 494

The Hawaiian Department, which long antedated the war, served from 1939 as the army's major command in the Central Pacific until August 1943, when the U.S. Army Forces in the Central Pacific Area (USAFICPA) was established. The Hawaiian Department's records and most of its responsibilities were transferred to USAFICPA, but the department was not formally discontinued, and it remained active for some purposes, such as military government.

USAFICPA was renamed the U.S. Army Forces Pacific Ocean Areas (USAFPOA) in July 1944, and its jurisdiction was enlarged to include army garrisons in the South Pacific that had been controlled by the U.S. Army Forces in the South Pacific. In July 1945 it was renamed the U.S. Army Forces in the Middle Pacific (USAFMIDPAC) and was placed under General Headquarters, U.S. Army Forces, Pacific.

The Middle Pacific command had some tactical responsibilities, but most of its activities related to administration, supply, and training in the area. Shortly after December 7, 1941, tactical control of the Hawaiian Department was given to the Commander in Chief, Pacific Ocean Areas, and this control was extended to USAFICPA and to USAFPOA.

Record Group 496

General Headquarters, Southwest Pacific Area (GHQ SWPA) was established by General Order 1, GHQ SWPA, April 18, 1942, pursuant to Combined Chiefs of Staff (CCS) directive, CCS 57/1, March 30, 1942, designating Gen. Douglas MacArthur as Supreme Commander SWPA, and defining the area to include Australia, New Britain, New Ireland, New Guinea, Borneo, the Celebes, and the Philippines. GHQ SWPA exercised operational control over all Allied ground, naval, and air forces in SWPA; exercised strategic direction of and provided operational support for, operations conducted in the adjacent South Pacific Area; and developed policies on supply, combat training, and other matters.

GHQ SWPA was an integrated combined headquarters, and its staff officers were drawn from the air, ground, and naval services of the United States, Australia, United Kingdom, and Netherlands. Subordinate tactical headquarters, established in 1942, was interallied in character and included Allied Land Forces, under an Australian officer; Allied Air Forces, under a U.S. officer who also commanded the U.S. Fifth Air Force; and the Allied Naval Forces. GHQ SWPA was located in Melbourne, Australia, April-July 1942; Brisbane, Australia, July 1942-October 1944; Hollandia, New Guinea, October 1944-January 1945; Tacloban, Leyte, Philippine Islands, January-April 1945; and Manila, Philippine Islands, April-September 1945. It was abolished pursuant to General Order 40, GHQ SWPA, August 28, 1945, according to which, effective September 2, 1945, most of the area covered by SWPA passed to control of Southeast Asia Command, with remaining area to continue under GHQ SWPA until such time as forces and personnel could be reassigned.

U.S. Army Forces in the Pacific (AFPAC) was established April 6, 1945, and absorbed forces that had previously been assigned to U.S. Army Forces, Far East (USAFFE) and U.S. Army Forces, Pacific Ocean Areas (USAFPOA). It was responsible for the provision of Army resources for operation in the Pacific under the direction of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Its headquarters were established in Manila, Philippine Islands, but on March 25, 1946 headquarters was transferred to Tokyo. Its sole commander was Gen. Douglas MacArthur, April 6, 1945-December 31, 1946. On December 31, 1946, it was replaced by the Far East Command.

Situation Reports, 1941-1945 (0496-UD-UP-1)

Situation reports were prepared by the Combined Operations Intelligence Centre. Originally this was an Australian organization that furnished copies of the situation reports to the U.S. Military Attaché in Melbourne. After April 1942, the Combined Operations Intelligence was placed under the Assistant Chief of Staff, G-2, of General Headquarters. This set of situation reports, originally kept by the Military Attaché, was maintained by the Chief of Staff. Arranged chronologically. The series is numbered sequentially from December 8, 1941 through January 25, 1943; renumbered again from January 26 through December 29, 1943, again during 1944, and then again for those issued in 1945. Boxes 1-158 location: 290/45/34/05.

Records of the Assistant Chief of Staff, G-2

On April 19, 1942 Gen. MacArthur announced that Col. Charles A. Willoughby was G-2, Assistant Chief of Staff for Intelligence, of the General Headquarters, Southwest Pacific Area. He was promoted to Brig. Gen. (temporarily) on June 20, 1942. Willoughby set up the Central Bureau, a cryptological unit in his intelligence system which engaged in codebreaking. In July 1942 Willoughby set up the Allied Geographical Section to collect, evaluate, and disseminate geographical information. In June 1942 MacArthur ordered Willoughby to form an apparatus to work underground in the Philippines, stressing operations to destroy Japanese facilities. This organization, the Allied Intelligence Bureau (AIB), was established in July 1942. The AIB also conducted propaganda operations. AIB had coastwatchers, including those from the Royal Australian Navy, who were inserted behind enemy lines with radio transmitters for communications with the American and Australian military forces. The AIB collected information in occupied territories and encouraged guerrilla resistance movements. Willoughby created the Allied Translator and Interpreter Section (ATIS) in September 1942 which, under the leadership of Col. Sidney F. Mashbir, interrogated prisoners of war and translated captured documents. Willoughby also organized an Order of Battle Section in August 1942, whose purpose was to locate various Japanese units, assess their leadership and morale, weapons, effectiveness, and mission.

Allied Intelligence Bureau

The Allied Intelligence Bureau (AIB) was established in June 1942 under the command of Australian Col. C. G. Roberts. He reported directly to Maj. Gen. Charles A. Willoughby, who was MacArthur's Chief Intelligence Officer for the South West Pacific area (SWPA). Col. Van S. Merle-Smith of the U.S. Army acted as a link between the Col. Roberts, Controller of the AIB and Willoughby. AIB's Finance Officer was Lt. Col. Alison W. Ind of the U.S. Army.

AIB's mission was "to obtain and report information of the enemy in the South West Pacific Area, exclusive of the continent of Australia and Tasmania, and in addition, where practicable, to weaken the enemy by sabotage and destruction of morale." AIB was staffed by personnel from 10 armed services from Australia, Britain, America, Netherlands East Indies and Asia. At its peak it controlled eight separate organizations broken up into four Sections:-Section A: Special Operations Australia; Section B: Secret Intelligence Service, Australian Section, also known as Secret Intelligence Australia (SIA); Section C: There were 3 sub-sections:- 1. North-east Area - mainly Coast Watch Organization later called Combined Field Intelligence Service; 2. Philippines (the Philippines Regional Section was later established as a separate section); 3. Netherlands East Indies (the Netherlands Forces Intelligence Section, Division III which later became a separate section); and, Section D: Far Eastern Liaison Office (FELO) or Military Propaganda Section.

Allied Intelligence Bureau, Philippine Regional Section

The Philippines Regional Section was initially a small subsection of the Allied Intelligence Bureau and was charged with the responsibility to provide logistical, organization, supply, and coordination support and communications with the Philippine resistance movement. In late May 1943, Col., later Brig. Gen., Courtney Whitney arrived in Brisbane and took command of the Section. Its mandate was widened, and the Philippine Regional Section became semiautonomous, reporting directly to the Chief of Staff and coordinating with the Assistant Chief of Staff for Intelligence (G-2). Administratively it remained under the Allied Intelligence Bureau for administrative and logistical support.

Allied Translator and Interpreter Section (ATIS)

After the Allied Forces seized the offensive in the Southwest Pacific Area, the increasing number of prisoners and documents captured necessitated the consolidation and expansion of such Allied linguistic units as already existed. As a result, General Headquarters, Southwest Pacific Area, issued on September 19, 1942, a directive establishing the Allied Translator and Interpreter Section (ATIS) as a centralized intelligence organization composed primarily of language personnel and designed to systematize the exploitation of captured documents and the interrogation of prisoners of war. An original group of 25 officers and 10 enlisted men expanded steadily as more linguists became available from the language schools set up under army, navy, and air force control in the United States, Australia, Great Britain, and India. At its peak in 1945, ATIS was composed of more than 1,000 personnel.

From October 1942 to June 1945, ATIS, SWPA, was located at Indooroopilly, a suburb of Brisbane, Australia. In order to carry out its responsibilities, ATIS was organized into various sections: Translation, Examination, Information, Production, Training, Records, and Philippine Islands Research. ATIS operated in the field through Advanced Echelons (attached to Corps and Armies) and Language Detachments (attached to Divisions).

In March 1944 plans were developed for a forward ATIS to be located in closer proximity to combat operations. Accordingly, the Assistant Chief of Staff, G-2, directed on September 22, 1944, that Advanced Allied Translator and Interpreter Section (ADVATIS) be established in the immediate vicinity of General Headquarters at Hollandia. The unit was in effect a miniature ATIS, with various sections coordinating the production of translation and interrogation reports of immediate operation value and importance to units in the operational areas. In May 1945 ADVATIS followed the advance of General Headquarters into Manila. Base ATIS was closed at Brisbane on June 4, 1945, and established several weeks later in Manila.

With the surrender of the Japanese, the Advanced Party of ATIS arrived in Tokyo on October 3, 1945. Base ATIS ceased operations in Manila in November 1945 and began operations in Tokyo on November 17th.

In February 1943 a separate headquarters was established, subordinate to General Headquarters, SWPA, to supervise all army training and administrative activities that were not closely related to the tactical and strategic direction of the war in the Southwest Pacific. The new command, U.S. Army Forces in the Far East (USAFEE), was a reconstitution of the USAFFE headquarters in the Philippines. Gen. MacArthur was in command of USAFFE as well as GHQ SWPA. Reporting to USAFFE was the extensive supply and training organization known as the U.S. Army Services of Supply, SWPA. On June 10, 1945, USAFFE was discontinued, and its functions were transferred to GHQ US Army Forces, Pacific.

Record Group 554

General Headquarters, Supreme Commander Allied Powers (GHQ SCAP) was formally established at Tokyo, Japan, October 2, 1945, by GHQ SCAP General Order 1, October 2, 1945, pursuant to a directive of President Truman, August 14, 1945, designating Gen. Douglas MacArthur as SCAP, as agreed to by the governments of the United States, United Kingdom, Republic of China, and U.S.S.R. Responsible for enforcing Japanese compliance with the Instrument of Surrender, signed September 2, 1945. In the absence of established Allied machinery to supervise the occupation, the United States assumed primary responsibility for the occupation with the consent of the other powers due to the dominant role played by U.S. forces in the defeat of Japan, the U.S. security interests in the Pacific area, and the ability of the U.S. economy to bear the financial burden of the occupation. GHQ SCAP was staffed by general and special staff of GHQ U.S. Army Forces in the Pacific (AFPAC) some of which operated in a dual capacity. In its functions as SCAP, GHQ exercised administrative control over Japan through and with the cooperation of the Emperor and the existing Japanese government. Direct military government was imposed only in the Ryukyu Islands and Korea, where no effective local government had been in existence. As GHQ AFPAC, the command deployed military forces throughout the country to insure security, maintain order, and supervise the implementation of SCAP directives. In addition GHQ AFPAC was responsible for the ground and air defense of the area under its control.

GHQ Far East Command (GHQ FEC) established, effective January 1, 1947, by War Department classified message WARX 87793, December 16, 1946, implementing Joint Chiefs of Staff Unified Command Plan, Joint Chiefs of Staff 1259/27, approved by President Truman, December 14, 1946, replacing GHQ AFPAC. The geographic area of responsibility of GHQ FEC encompassed Japan, South Korea, the Ryukyu Islands, the Marianas-Bonins Islands, and the Philippine Islands. In a change to the basic Unified Command Plan, on February 16, 1950, South Korea was removed from the Commander in Chief, Far East's (CINCFE) area of responsibility and the Volcano Islands were added. On April 9, 1951, the President approved the transfer of responsibility for the Marianas-Bonins and Volacno Islands from CINCFE to CINCPAC and at the end of the year CINCFE's area of responsibility contracted further with the transfer to CINPAC of responsibility to for U.S. security interests in the Philippines, the Pescadores, and Formosa.

CINCFE commanded all U.S. land, naval, and air forces allocated to GHQ FEC, and exercised this command through the appropriate headquarters of the services, which included Headquarters, Far East Air Forces, and Commander, Naval Forces, Far East. Until late 1952 CINCFE retained direct command of the army component, Headquarters, U.S. Army Forces, Far East, an organization without troops, which had been maintained since 1945 for legal purposes only. The staff of GHQ FEC, SCAP, and United Nations Command (UNC) was in almost all respects an army staff. The missions assigned to CINCFE included support of the occupation of Japan, conduct of civil affairs and military government operations throughout the region, maintenance of military security in the Far East, support of U.S. foreign policy, discharge of U.S. military responsibilities in the Philippines, and the formation of plans and preparations to cope with general emergencies. Although CINCFE had been relieved of responsibility for South Korea, early U.S. responses to the North Korean attack of June 25, 1950, were undertaken by GHQ FEC. These actions, which included logistical support to the Republic of Korea, protection of the evacuation, air operations, and finally ground operations, although beyond the authority granted by the Unified Command Plan, were undertaken with Presidential approval. Following the establishment of the United Nations Command on July 25, 1950, Gen. MacArthur, as CINCFE, supported the operations of the UNC, which he commanded as CINUNC.

On December 5, 1950, CINCFE became governor of the Ryukyu Islands and administered military government functions through a deputy governor stationed in the Ryukyus and a small headquarters, U.S. Civil Administration in the Ryukyus (USCAR).

GHQ United Nations Command (GHQ UNC) was established by GHQ UNC General Order 1, July 25, 1950, implementing United Nations (UN) Document S/1511, authorizing UN military assistance to Republic of Korea, approved by UN Security Council, June 27, 1950. GHQ continued to utilize the SCAP/FEC headquarters and staff to carry out UNC functions of accomplishing United Nations objectives in Korea.

Gen. MacArthur commanded GHQ SCAP, FEC, and UNC concurrently. He was relieved April 11, 1951, and replaced by Gen. Matthew B. Ridgeway. GHQ SCAP terminated April 28, 1952, and announced by GHQ SCAP General Order 10, April 28, 1952, following the conclusion of the Treaty of Peace with Japan, April 28, 1952.
